Bechstein.

Early Life

Chez was born in Detroit, Michigan to Andre Kent Lewis and Eureka Lewis. Andre Kent Lewis played trumpet, and flugelhorn and Eureka Lewis is an actress, playwright, and director. At the age of 9, Chez began playing on an old upright piano from his grandfather and learned piano by ear as a hobby. One day, Chez's mother heard him practicing and she knew immediately that he had a gift. With her encouragement, he decided to further develop his gift. He began expanding his knowledge by purchasing music books at the local Barnes And Noble bookstore. Chez was raised in church and was initially heavily influenced by gospel, neo soul, and blues. His earliest influence was his father Andre Kent Lewis. Andre Kent would play trumpet as Chez accompanied him on piano in their living room as they listened to smooth jazz artists such as George Benson, Chuck Mangione, and Grover Washington.

In 2000, Chez moved to Hampton, VA. He began playing jazz, r&b, and gospel gigs around the city. In addition, he played and was the music director at several churches. In church, he learned to play the organ. In high school, he played tenor saxophone in concert and marching band where he learned to read music. Eventually, he taught himself to play guitar as well.

Career and Education

After graduating from high school in 2008, Chez was given a scholarship by renowned jazz saxophonist and composer Frank Foster to attend Berklee College of Music. In 2009, while still attending college, he opened for Randy Brecker, Jae Sinnett, and Spyro Gyra at the Sandler Center playing solo piano. After 2 semesters, he was hired as a Broadway pianist and moved to NYC in 2009. Since then, Chez has worked with several notable Broadway productions including MJ the Musical, Memphis The Musical, Memphis The Musical On Tour, Holler If You Hear Me, Motown, Dreamgirls On Tour; and several off Broadway productions including Jelly's Last Jam at the NYC City Center, Langston In Harlem, The Eve Of Jackie: A Tribute To Jackie Wilson, What They'll Remember, Sophisticated Lady: The Songs Of Natalie Cole, Pal Joey at the NYC City Center, and Ella: An American Miracle.

Chez has taught private instruction for beginner through advanced students of all ages since 2010. He was also a music instructor for the Riverbank State Park Cultural Department in Harlem from 2016 - 2020. Since 2024, Chez has led workshops at The New School's College of Performing Arts for the Barry Harris Institute.

Chez is the pianist and organist on the Brooklyn Tabernacle Choir's 2026 Grammy Award winning album "I Will Not Be Moved".
